It is unfortunate and curious that at this dark hour when our vital interests and chances of survival as a free and self-governing people are at stake in the war now raging, when our country must by strength upon unity, and when small nations are overrun and conquered that it must be reported that citizens throughout Canada have to band together and to use strong words for the purpose of pleading with their elected leaders for more and more action or for more signs of backbone in the war effort. Yet that is exactly what is happening in this country now and it may compel a showdown along Parliament Hill.

Despite the admission by this observer that some of these popular demands are praiseworthy, that they show the present temper, the clear will, and the expressed determination of the people and that they involve the exercising to the full of the right of criticism which it has always been held to be cardinal in our democracy whether at peace or at war, these demands are incited now by sentiment more than by sound reasoning or logic. It is a case of debating, of haggling, of name calling, and of appeals to passion and prejudice.

There is but one reason for this situation in Canada and that is that the man-in-the-street is still engaged in too much blind preoccupation with little personal affairs, with numerous local duties, and with countless mean and petty peacetime aims which democracy is so careful to guard for him. In this preoccupation, the man-in-the-street is inclined to forget that the best of us, the younger men amongst us, are risking not only their worldly possessions and liberty but their lives, not to conquer and to take but to succor and to give to humanity, making the supreme sacrifice of lives so young, so buoyant, so eager and so inexpressibly precious to each mother, to each father, to their kin, in order that the man-in-the-street in Canada and elsewhere might live in a free world.

At a time when it is essential that the people of Canada should show to the whole world that this democracy is united and not subject to the whims of any minority, symbolizing the finest character of a self-governing people, perpetual disagreements have continued to be part of the nature of everyday life along Parliament Hill. This might be permissible in peacetime but not in wartime. If the Prime Minister announces some new national policy it is sure to be followed by marked differences of opinion from one end of the country to the other; if the Minister of Finance, announces some new financial policy, it is sure to be followed by marked divisions in public opinion; and so on down the line whenever new legislation is brought in. And this division of opinion seems to continue without end!

Why? It is due not only to blind preoccupation of the man in the street in Canada but to a lack of optimistic appreciation of available information, particularly of the vital role which this country is playing now in the creation of the vast "arsenal of the democracies" in America since there is no doubt that technically a modern war must be decided by production and economics as much as actual combat. Bearing in mind that Canada and the United States have very close and intimate relationships and agreements in this partnership, this is a pertinent point for the man-in-the-street in this nation.

There are not many Canadians who really appreciate the extent of present armament production. Already two of the greatest motor companies in the New World Wright and Pratt-Whitney, are producing enough motors in one month as all German companies are able to produce. Airplane production has reached the point where at least 2,200 machines are produced a month, and by June, 1943 is expected to be 4,000 a month. The same production optimism holds for all other armaments being produced such as tanks, ships and ammunition.

In other words, if the man-in-the-street is able to discontinue playing blindman's bluff by preoccupation with unimportant peacetime matters and by realizing the true meaning of the available information, a real service would be rendered in obtaining a greater degree of unity throughout this country and the already difficult task of the authorities on Parliament Hill would be eased considerably.

PRICE CEILING

Elsewhere in this issue is an advertisement relative to the Price Ceiling Order now in effect. We would advise all readers of this paper to make a point of becoming familiar with the text of this notice.

This is one of the most important pieces of legislation enacted since the outbreak of the war. Its object, pure and simple, is to prevent inflation, and protect the individual citizen from exploitation at the hands of unpatriotic individuals who would use the excuse of war to raise prices unfairly and line their pockets at the expense of us all.

Do your part by living up to the regulations in whatever way they affect you.

THIS FREEDOM

As time goes on we are becoming, each and every one of us, more and more affected by the war. We who are the stay at homes are finding that no matter what our station is in life we are obliged to contribute our share to the national effort. Nearly every month sees new legislation affecting us, new calls upon our pocketbooks, new intrusions upon our time. All these we must accept honestly and courageously. They are the price we pay for living in a democracy. And the price is small in comparison to the value we get for our money. If we were living under Hitler we would be contributing much more, very much more, and we would get in return only moral and economic slavery. Yes, there may be some things about our democratic way of life that we do not like, but we do like 'this freedom' we enjoy so much. That is why we buckle down and accept these wartime impositions in good spirit.

The people of Canada may well be proud of themselves. In every call made upon them for money or service, they have more than met their obligations. Carry on Canada!

THE PRICE CEILING ORDER IS NOW LAW

A fine up to $5,000 and two years imprisonment is provided for offences against this law

What You Must Do to Comply With This Law

1. As a Consumer

You must not buy goods or services for more than the highest price charged for such goods or services during the basic period, September 15 to October 11. If in doubt, ask your merchant for proof the price he asks is a lawful price under the Price Ceiling order. Normal seasonal price changes in fresh fruits and vegetables and greenhouse products are exempt.

2. As a Retailer

You must not sell goods or services for more than the highest price at which you sold such goods or services in the basic period, September 15 to October 11.

You must not buy goods or services from manufacturers or wholesalers or any other sources for more than the highest price you paid to them in the basic period.

It is intended that cases of serious hardship should be adjusted by reducing the cost of merchandise to the retailer. Retailers whose cost of merchandise delivered to them after November 30 is too high in relation to the ceiling prices, should get in touch with their suppliers and try to arrange an adjustment fair to both parties.

The price of goods of a kind or quality not sold during the basic period must not be more than the highest price charged for substantially similar goods in the basic period.

3. As a Wholesaler

You must not sell goods or services at more than your highest price (less discounts then prevailing) for such goods or services during the basic period, September 15 to October 11. You must not buy goods or services for more than the highest prices paid during the basic period.

Wholesalers will be expected in some cases to reduce their prices below the ceiling in order that their retail accounts may carry on. Wholesalers in turn may have to ask their suppliers for price reductions.

The continued flow of goods through normal channels is of the utmost importance and the Board will intervene if suppliers divert business abnormally from one customer to another.

4. As a Manufacturer

You must not sell at prices higher than your highest price (less discounts then prevailing) during the basic period September 15 to October 11.

In some cases it will be necessary for manufacturers to reduce their prices below the ceiling so that wholesale and retail accounts may carry on.

Where maintenance of the retail ceiling requires manufacturers' prices to be substantially reduced, the Board will investigate and in proper cases will afford necessary relief.

Imports

Retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers are assured by the Board that any considerable increases in the costs of import of essential goods will be covered either by subsidies or by adjustment of taxes. Details will be announced shortly.

Services Also Come Under This Law

The Price Ceiling law also applies to rates and charges for electricity, gas, steam, heat, water, telegraph, wireless, telephone, transportation, provision of dock, harbour, pier facilities; warehousing and storage; manufacturing processes performed on a commission or profit basis; undertaking and embalming; laundering, cleaning, tailoring and dressmaking; hair-dressing, barbering and beauty parlour services; plumbing, heating, painting, decorating, cleaning, and renovating; repairing of all kinds; supplying of meals, refreshment and beverages; exhibition of motion pictures.

NO CHEATING OR EVASION OF THE PRICE CEILING LAW WILL BE TOLERATED

“How the Price Law Works,” a pamphlet setting forth how each branch of business must apply the regulations to its own operation will shortly be available at Post Offices and Branch Banks.

The Board will soon open Regional Offices throughout Canada where problems may be discussed. These Offices will co-operate with business in the adjustment of difficulties.

The Price Ceiling law is vital to Canada's war effort.
